

Kerry Kennedy, left, talks with former Ukrainian first lady Kateryna Yushchenko during a tour at the JFK Museum in Hyannis on Friday morning. Yushchenko, who had visited Cape Cod once before, was scheduled to spend the weekend touring some other houses at the Kennedys' Hyannisport compound and possibly sailing, said the museum's Executive Director Wendy Northcross, who visited with the guests. Yushchenko, born in Chicago with parents who were Ukrainian immigrants, "was very lively and interested, as was Kerry Kennedy," Northcross said. PHOTOS BY STEVE HEASLIP/CAPE COD TIMES

Former Ukrainian first lady visits JFK Museum

Yushchenko takes in a wall filled with images of former President John F. Kennedy, wife Jackie and a young Caroline during the museum tour. Northcross says Yushchenko reminisced about being the first Ukrainian first lady to accompany her husband with their children on state occasions. "She said people likened her to Jackie Kennedy because of that," Northcross said.

Robert Kennedy's daughter Kerry, left, who heads RFK Human Rights, gives Yushchenko a personal tour at the museum. JFK Her husband, Victor Yushchenko, was president from 2005 to 2010.
